My Story:

20 years ago while working in the lab, I was unknowingly exposed to a toxic chemical, which hospitalized me and to this day has left me with lingering effects. After my exposure and much reflection — I decided to search, and if not find — develop better and safer alternatives to use in our daily working lives.

The products on this page are all designed to reduce or eliminate your exposure to harmful chemicals or other exposures. Though some of them are not what I would call completely safe, they are much smarter choices than other products currently on the market.

Set some time aside, think about yourself and your coworkers and look into the future — If we don't take care of ourselves, how can we take care of others?

Fabtech is committed to developing cleaner, healthier products and methods for the O&P industry.

You have my word on it.
